HAZARDOUS FIRE DANGER

As areas affected by the Camp Fire are opened to the public, there is important HEALTH and SAFETY information that you need to be aware of. Residents will be entering these areas at their own risk. Affected areas will not have access to:

- No Power
- No Phone/Cell Service
- No Water
- No ability to call 911

Hazardous Fire Dangers

Debris and ash from burned properties may contain toxic substances due to the presence of asbestos and hazardous materials. When building materials contain asbestos, hazardous materials waste such as chemicals, cleaning products, pesticides, and other chemicals may have been burned in the fire. These materials can become concentrated in ash and soil and be hazardous to you and your family. Burned properties will have the following health and safety risks for residents:

- Potential strong fumes and dusts
- Potential collapsing walls or ceilings
- Unsecured materials that have become rusty, collapsed or compromised walls, tanks, missing asphalt tank covers or collapsed basements
- A water rescuing well water may be contaminated, making drinking water unsafe to use
- All fire businesses will not protect against asbestos

What to Expect

- Roads, paths, grounds, long streets, dust make and eye protection
- Do not wear clothes that have been burned

Use extreme caution when in and around what appears to be cold ash. It still may contain heat.

proper handling and disposal of debris and ash from the fire. In the meantime, in order to protect your health and the health of your neighbors and your community, properly contain that not move any ash and debris without authorization from Butte County Environmental Health.

Tire Damage

Many tires have been identified as hazardous due to the fire and will be removed in the coming days. These tires may be on your property or near your property. Upon return, you may see these marked with white spray paint with the code:

- P1 (hazardous, make full of any fire)
- P2 (hazardous, scheduled for removal)

Food Safety

The affected areas have not had power since the fire started. Food is considered unsafe after a power loss of four or more hours. If you have food remaining at your home or property, all food should be discarded.

- Never taste food to determine safety. You can't rely on appearance or odor to determine food safety.
- If your refrigerator has been non-operational for an extended period of time, the food inside is no good.
- Once your refrigerator has been emptied, clean the inside with soap and water. Rinse with water. Then sanitize with water and bleach (1 Tablespoon of bleach per gallon of water).

Electrical Hazards

Please treat any and all down power lines as wires, be energized and live with the potential to cause serious injury, up to and including death.

There may be other hazards and conditions not mentioned here that could cause health problems and serious injury or death.

Fire

Smoke

With yesterday's decrease in fire emissions, we are seeing some limited improvement in this morning's smoke levels regionally, though local monitors still read in the Very unhealthy range. These improvements will likely be limited, because terrain-driven winds will likely continue to inject some smoke into the Central Valley. Red Flag winds in the Feather River Canyon may intensify smoke emissions, but also provide better mixing locally, so we expect more variability in the smoke levels over the next 48 hours. Impacts to the SW of the fire tomorrow (Sunday) will likely depend on fire activity. Bay Area and Sacramento sites may also see some limited improvement today but could worsen tomorrow. The increased NE winds may bring more smoke to Santa Rosa/Lake County areas today, and likely clearing to the north.

Fire:
Firefighters continue to make good progress on the northern and eastern flanks, and fire perimeter growth has slowed again as of this morning, with containment up to 45% from 40%. Firing operations continue to improve containment lines and produce some small fraction of total smoke production, estimated at 100-1,000 tons PM2.5. Fuels are very dry and consuming efficiently.

Smoke:
Though fire emissions continue to decrease, smoke impacts have worsened in many places as smoke accumulates under the strong inversion "lid" on the floor of the Central Valley and in the Bay Area. Terrain-driven winds continue to inject smoke into the Central Valley under that lid, with very little vertical mixing. Regionally, smoke levels are in the Hazardous range at sites directly in the path of the smoke coming out of the Feather River Canyon, south into the Sacramento and Bay Area. Today and tomorrow, this pattern will likely persist and may worsen in some places south of the fire as more smoke accumulates. Some limited clearing may occur this afternoon north of the fire in the bedding area, but Chester and areas NE of the fire in the higher elevations may start to see more smoke.
